Attendance of museums and galleries

Museums and galleries are important cultural objects. They are usually visited by tourists that want to discover more about English history and art. I have collected some data on several museums and galleries, which show people's attendance of them for three separate years.

Due to the information given in the table the most visited objects ~~are~~ by 2017 are British Museum and National Gallery, though they were not the most popular in 2013. Tate Gallery was the least attended one in 2013, but it developed and by 2017 it has more people than ~~National~~ Natural History Museum ~~or~~ Science Museum. These two museums were on the top in 2013, but it ~~appears~~ that after introducing admission charges in 2014 they went low in their ~~rate~~. However, slowly they are getting people back.

I think that to increase people's attendance museums and galleries should do several things. Firstly, admission charges should be not very high, but affordable. Secondly, galleries may organize exhibitions of different artists and advertise it. Thirdly, staff should always treat people ~~respectively~~ and, of course, the same is required from visitors. In addition, I believe that the atmosphere in such places is very important, so it is needed to make the right light and music everywhere.

To sum up, it is clear that museums and galleries are popular among people. Their interest in English history, art and science increases almost every year. I consider this interest in culture one of the best things about our generation.
