Report on attendance of museums and galleries

Museums and galleries of England are popular public attractions that are chosen to be visited by millions of people every year. The number of visitors never stays the same, and the museum boards of directors follow the purpose of increasing this number. The chart and the summary below are to show data collected during a research on the attendance of museums and galleries.

Recently the number of visitors has been rapidly changing. A big change in attendance rate happened between 2013 and 2015, likely caused by the rise of tourism in England. More people started visiting museums ~~at~~ and galleries. But, in contrast, some of them lost more than 2 million visitors per year due to introduction of admission charges in 2014. So ~~under~~ the fact that people have to pay to attend doesn't appeal most of them. That is one of the reasons the Science Museum which was more popular than British Museum in 2013, became the least visited comparing to other listed museums.

There are several factors that affect the ~~number~~ attendance. As said before, admission charges negatively draw on statistics. So the way of solving the problem is removing charges or at least making them lower. Then, selling souvenirs could be ~~another~~ ^{important} an alternative source of money. Of course, another ^{important} thing is location and service. Hiring professional guides will help the attendance.

The key of increasing the attendance is pleasing the visitors and making their time in museum or gallery fun and enjoyable.
