Subject: Attendance of museums and galleries

Data: February 11th, 2017

The aim of this report is to describe the collected data and give recommendations to the museum boards of directors what could be done to increase people's attendance of museums and galleries.

There were some discouraging things. The rate of visits to the Natural History Museum and the Science Museum have been respectively dropping over the last few years. This is due to the museums introducing admission charges in 2014. Since that time other museums and galleries have been getting more public appeal and thus more visits. To improve the situation museum and gallery owners should either cut down the prices or remove the entirely. But this might not be an option for some because admission charges are substantial for their companies. Instead, owners should consider making their museums and galleries more interactive and entertaining. For example, build animatronics that resemble dinosaurs, build playgrounds for children, place canvases where children can draw on, hire guides so that they can explain in detail historical events to visitors, Gift shops could also help with museums and galleries' financial problems.

To sum up, the introduction of admission charges in 2014 caused the rate of visitors to museums and galleries to plummet. To fix this problem owners of museums and galleries should either cut down the prices or remove them entirely. They should also consider making a visitor's experience more exciting and fun by adding more entertaining and interactive things.
